I tried several times last week and this week to register with my gmail.com email to no avail. I did not even find the registration email making it to my spam folder! There may be an issue with nux sending to gmail.com accounts now.

Thanks
pj

Hi,

Need to check, thanks for reporting.

Can you message me your gmail address so I can look for it in the logs?

I couldn't register using my Google Apps hosted domain or my Outlook.com account. I had to resort to using my work account.

Yeah, the gmail/hotmail servers are complaining because the forum sends "not RFC 5322 compliant" messages.
Need to see how to fix this, or change the whole darn forum altogether with something more decent. :)

The messages from the forum have two "From:" headers...

X-Amavis-Alert: BAD HEADER SECTION, Duplicate header field: "From"

Thanks, I've opened a bug report with them.

This guy seems to have found a workaround for this issue back in 2013:

Thanks for that.

I have actually tried it previously without success, but I think it may also be an issue with the SMTP server I was using.

I have switched back to using mail() on "localhost". Now at worst the emails are marked as spam, but they should reach you.

Feel free to try.
